

Dividend Reinvestment Choices in StockTrack™

Make it easy for your existing shareholders to reinvest in your company

Overview

A DRP (“Dividend Reinvestment Plan”) can provide continued and automatic investment in your company by your current shareholders. There are two methods of handling a DRP in StockTrack™.

The Fractional Share DRP provides for separate accounting of logical shares and cash contributions in the DRP balanced by shares held by a Dividend Reinvestment Administrator (“DRA”) holding shares in the ‘regular’ system. This provides flexibility but also requires some additional administrative work.

The Full Share DRP, requires less administrative time and provides for simpler reporting. It generates new shares (as its name implies) as full shares only and the remainder of the dividend is paid by check or direct deposit.

Fractional Shares DRP vs Full Share DRP

Full Share DRP

Fractional Shares DRP

Features

Issue full shares for the number of shares that can be purchased from a shareholders net cash dividend	Allocates whole and fractional shares as part of the DRP (whether non-reinvestment shares are set to whole shares or fractional shares)
Issued and outstanding DRP shares are indistinguishable from other shares in the company	Kept in a separate transactional file unless converted to standard shares
Shares are issued based on the number of full shares of stock that a shareholder can purchase from the percent of their cash dividend (0% to 100%) that each shareholder elects to participate in DRP.	Shareholder can add funds in any amount to purchase shares
DRP Shares are indistinguishable from other shares in the company	Shareholders can convert DRP shares to physical shares or withdraw funds from the DRP
DRP Shares are indistinguishable from non-DRP shares and appear on all applicable screens, reports and shareholder statements	DRP Statement and separate reporting included
Shareholders can select the percentage of their cash distribution that will be used for Full Share DRP. The number of full shares that can be purchased with these funds will be issued as shares. Any remaining funds are paid as a check or ACH.	Shareholder can specify that all or a specified number of shares participate in the DRP

If you do not currently offer a DRP program, check with your legal and tax advisors. You may need new or updated authorization or approvals from government agencies and your Board of Directors.
